

To Whom it may concern within the Washington Utilities and Transportation Commission

I would like to suggest that Trystan Matthews be given a chance to operate his recycling business on Whidbey Island. If, as his letter indicates, Island county recycling rates are 7% lower than the state average, perhaps we should have an alternate company, creating some healthy competition. I know that my daughter pulls stuff out of the trash, if I've taken the easy route. Let's set some good examples, please.

Thanks,

Margot Jerome
