

CenturyLink is filing to withdraw PS/ALI services from all entities because they lost the contract to be the PS/ALI data warehouse. As a carrier they should provide their customers a method of updating the PS/ALI information and subsequently pass it to ComTech which holds the data but does not provide any PS/ALI services. As the main carrier, CenturyLink actually owns the DNs. By withdrawing from this service it would remove the ability for their customers to update locations information for DN that are actually CenturyLink property. This would also prevent CenturyLink from having accurate information for any type of DN services.
