Dear Executive Director and Secretary Amanda Marshall,

Thank you for the opportunity to comment re: natural gas line extension allowances. The use of fossil fuels in buildings adds significant amounts of greenhouse gases to our environment. Given our most recent knowledge of how quickly we need to eliminate greenhouse gas emission it is unconscionable to allow future buildings to allow gas utilities to incentivize new customers to join a system that lays new pipe, thus extending gas use. Line extension allowances force the cost of these pipe extensions onto existing customers. I resent paying for the extension of new pipelines for the profit of the utilities. Please end line extension policies.

*Thank you,
Janet Hedgepath
