Thank you for your response. Yes, you would need a Common Carrier permit to do general freight from point to point within Washington.

Since the household goods authority also covers the common carrier, we can cancel your household goods authority and just turn it into a Common Carrier permit. I would just need something in writing from you to take care of this.

If you just have the Common Carrier permit, you wouldn't have to do annual reports. We would just have to make sure we have insurance on file.

Let me know. Thanks!
Tina

Hello, Tina,

Please cancel our HHG permit. Because we do not handle any local move. We just handle for Import and Export delivery. We do general freight for import and export cargo only.
Do we need to get permit if we do general freight from point to point within Washington state?
We do have some but we are using trucking company now.

Thank you

Mr. Yashiro,

I receive a copy of the letter you provided to our agency regarding your 2013 Annual Report and you asked to please terminate your permit.

Before I voluntary cancel your authority, I want to make sure you aren't providing any type of intrastate hauls. Not just household goods, but general freight?

If you do any general freight from point to point within Washington state, please let me know and we can change your household goods authority to just general commodities.

If you provide no intrastate hauls at all, I can go ahead and cancel your permit. Please let me know how to proceed.

Sincerely,
