I. INTRODUCTION

United Telephone Company of the Northwest hereby petitions the Washington Utilities and Transportation Commission to classify United's intraLATA toll services as competitive pursuant to RCW 80.36.330. The services subject to this petition are those listed currently in United's Tariff WN U-2, Schedule AE-2. The relevant product market for the petition is interexchange message toll service and related calling plans within each LATA in which United provides local exchange service; and in which those intraLATA toll services are provided on an "equal access" basis by which a customer chooses a primary interexchange carrier (PIC) to whom all 1+ intraLATA calls are directed. The geographic market subject encompassed by the petition is the State of Washington.

In order to classify United's intraLATA toll services as competitive telecommunication services, the Commission is required by RCW 80.36.330 to examine the number and size of alternative providers of these services; the extent to which these services are available from alternative providers in the relevant market; the ability of alternative providers to make functionally equivalent or substitute services readily available at competitive rates, terms, and conditions; and other indicators of market power which may include market share, ease of entry and the affiliation of providers of these services. A discussion of the factors listed in RCW 80.36.330 follows as factual support for United's petition in this matter.

II. STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS FOR CLASSIFICATION AS A COMPETITIVE TELECOMMUNICATIONS SERVICE

A. Alternative Providers of IntraLATA Toll Service

A list of alternative toll providers currently offering 1+ intraLATA service in competition with United is included in Attachment 1. This list illustrates that intraLATA toll services are available broadly from alternative providers in the relevant market. A list of telecommunications companies registered with the Commission is included as Attachment 2. While not every company listed on Attachment 2 is currently providing service in competition with United, the fact that they are registered to do business in the state provides some indication of their ability to enter the relevant market.

B. Ability of Alternative Providers to Make Functionally Equivalent or Substitute Services Available at Competitive Rates, Terms and Conditions

All telecommunications companies providing intraLATA toll services are required to file tariffs or price lists with the Commission. These tariffs and price lists set forth prices, terms, and conditions for provision of services. While specific rates and terms vary among providers, companies generally offer message toll service priced on a per-minute basis. Companies also offer operator services, directory assistance services, calling card services, and toll-free services. In other words, intraLATA toll services are being offered by alternative providers at competitive rates, terms and conditions.

Alternative toll service providers have also begun to aggressively market intraLATA 1+ service. For example, on May 21, 1997, in Docket UT-970876, MCI filed a promotional offering to encourage customers to select MCI as their intraLATA 1+ carrier. It was available to both new customers and customers who already use MCI as their Attachment 1 clearly demonstrates that customers have a wide choice of providers in the market and, as explained below, other firms can easily enter the market and United has no captive customer base.

D. Indicators of Market Power: Ease of Entry Into the Market

Entry into the toll market (including the interstate, interLATA, and intraLATA markets) can be accomplished by building and operating interexchange facilities and purchasing local exchange access services from carriers in each local exchange or by reselling the toll services of other interexchange carriers. Until recently, entry into the interLATA/interstate toll market was relatively easy but carriers could not easily enter the intraLATA market because they were unable to obtain 1+ equal access to the local customers of United. Beginning in April, 1997, and concluding in May, 1997, United implemented intraLATA equal access in its Washington exchanges. With this equal access, carriers may enter the intraLATA toll market by notifying United, which adds the carrier to its PIC list. Any customer can switch carriers by notifying either the carrier or United of the desired change.

E. Indicators of Market Power: Captive Customer Base

With intraLATA equal access implemented, United has no captive customer base for intraLATA toll service. Any customer can change carriers by notifying either United or the new carrier of the change.

F. Indicators of Market Power: Affiliation of Service Providers

United has approximately 230 affiliates within the meaning of RCW 80.16.010. One affiliate, Sprint Local Communications, provides intraLATA toll service in the market served by United.

G. Prices Charged for IntraLATA Toll Service Will Cover Cost

The rates for United's intraLATA toll services and its various calling plans were reviewed and approved by the Commission in Docket No. UT-961579 when United entered the intraLATA toll market. United submitted cost studies and demonstrated that the rates filed with and approved by the Commission were above cost.

United's intraLATA toll rates are now subject to an imputation test intended to prevent the company from pricing its retail toll services relative to its wholesale exchange access services in such a way as to create a "price squeeze" on its toll competitors. The imputation test ensures that United's toll rates are sufficiently high to cover tariffed access charges (or rates agreed to in interconnection agreements), plus the long-run incremental cost of additional services required to provide toll service. If classified as subject to effective competition, United's intraLATA toll service would continue to be subject to this imputation test.

III. CONCLUSION

In light of the foregoing, United asserts that the company's intraLATA toll services are subject to effective competition and respectfully requests that the Commission classify such services as competitive telecommunications services under RCW 80.36.330. If our petition is granted, United will comply fully with all notice requirements that apply to changes in its price lists for intraLATA toll services.

DATED this 25th day of November, 1997.
