I am not a scientist or medical doctor, I am a person who is "electro sensitive". This is not all in my mind, as many would have you believe, this is a fact. This means that I feel wireless radiation as a painful burning sensation going through my body. There is no shortage of information documenting that this condition exists. Other countries are now starting to build accommodations for electro sensitive people in housing developments, in hospitals etc. It apparently affects 3 to 5 % of the worlds population. My question, how could a technology be approved, and widely implemented knowing that it will be causing pain, distress, illness, loss of productivity, loss of residence and eventually loss of life of 2 to 5 % of our population. If 2 to 5% are being severely affected, does that mean that 100% of our population is also being affected without their awareness? Are our bees being affected, is nature being affected? Is electromagnetic radiation exposure a factor in rising autism, ADD and ADHD rates? Research indicates that there is a strong possibility that it is. Have we become this uncaring as a society? Surely there must be a better solution? Why not just replace the aging meters with more analog meters? They seem to have worked well for the past 20 years and provided jobs to those who read them. What are we going to do with the people who relied on these jobs to feed their families? Some one is profiting, and it is not the human beings in our communities. Do we really have to give into every whim of these huge corporations that are making us sick as they laugh all the way to the bank?
