Puget Sound Energy
2017 General Rate Case

FEA's Responses to the
First Set of Data Requests of
NW Energy Coalition, Renewable Northwest, and Natural Resources Defense Council to FEA

NWEC/RNW/NRDC Data Request No. 003 to FEA:

Please refer to page 8, lines 14-17, of the response testimony of Ali Al-Jabir. Does Mr. Al-Jabir have any empirical evidence that the quality of the customer service provided by PSE has declined as a result of decoupling? If so, please provide all such evidence.

FEA's Response:

Mr. Al-Jabir is not aware of any studies that have attempted to quantify the impact of decoupling on the quality of customer service in PSE's service territory. However, as a general matter, the motivation of any private business to provide quality customer service is closely linked to its desire to retain existing customers and to attract new customers in order to expand its revenue stream. All else being equal, mechanisms such as decoupling adversely impact a utility's incentive to provide quality customer service by rendering the utility financially neutral with respect to the sales volumes for its product.
