

Cascade Natural Gas Corporation

A Statement Attached to and Made Part of Application for a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity

Exhibit A

Feasibility Study for Proposed Gas Service by Cascade Natural Gas Corporation

At the request of various customers or real estate developers over the last few years, Cascade followed its applicable tariffs, entered into and performed customer agreements, and extended service lines and facilities to fulfill these requests. In no instance was the extended service near the facilities of another natural gas provider or near the certificated territory of another provider. CNGC did not subsidize the service line extensions or propose them on its own. However, CNGC inadvertently failed to note that the service line extensions described in this filing went outside of the certificated territory authorized for CNGC. Because these facilities are now already completed and serving customers, CNGC believes a traditional feasibility study would be unnecessary. The economics for the line extensions followed the line extension policies that were in effect during the time of the various additions.