Hello,

As a resident of Washington I feel strongly that we are in a position to lead the nation in the necessary transition to a clean energy future. We, through our legislators and initiatives, have set aggressive but achievable goals along this path, and now is not the time to cut back on them. We are seeing more reports every day on the impacts we are already experiencing in our lives and our economy due to the changes that have already occurred and those we can expect. If we don't stick to our goals we will suffer from an economy that needs to spend more time and energy to address the growing impacts of a warming climate and less on growth and the wellbeings of our citizens.

Keep the CETA goals and keep our economy moving forward.

Thank you,

Robert Clawson
