Hi there,

I'm a concerned citizen against advanced metering aka smart meters. There are known health concerns regarding smart meters, with a portion of the population that can have a very serious reaction. Rolling out this to consumers homes without their consent is unethical. While I understand the push for managing our power grid, it shouldn't be at the cost of ones enjoyment of their life and property. While I don't agree with smart meters, a compromise could be to only allow smart meter implementation with written consent of homeowner. Homeowners should be able to make the decision of what devices are installed on their property, especially ones that are hazardous.

Thanks,
Jacquelyn Green
