Thanks Mike, I appreciate your follow up.

We are thinking to wait a little bit longer and strongly consider starting a separate company for this... or completely give up on the idea. It's risky because we are piano people... not piano moving people. But we can try to add this perhaps. I'm talking to guys who would help with this.

The cost of the insurance is just too high unless we try to make it into a moving company... that is our quandry.

Anyway, this will not happen right away, so we will withdraw it.

How do we go about doing that?

Talk soon,

Kenn Wildes

Hello, we are currently past the deadline below. I wanted to give you one last chance to resolve the application one way or the other, I don't want you to be out 550 dollars. I can give you another week to provide the required insurance, or you can withdrawal your application. If you withdrawal, I can issue you a refund, if I have to dismiss it myself, then no refund will be issued.
